1. In mid-January there were approximately 200* Soviets in Shanghai. The majority of these were airplane technicians and pilots and were billeted at Hungjao and Kiangwan Airfields. Security at Kiangwan Airfield is maintained by three circular guarded sections. The outermost circle is guarded by Chinese Communist troops, the middle circle by Soviet and Chinese guards, and the inner circle by Soviet guards only. Soviets of all ranks receive the same pay and allowances as follows: 500 parity units as salary, plus another 500 parity units for rice allowance. In addition, all are quartered and fed at Chinese Communist expense. The Shanghai Council has established a bazaar on the ground floor of Broadway Mansions for the exclusive use of the Soviets.
